

Do Not Sell These to the Bot at Auction Prices

AH Bot Plus V.2 • Complete positive vendor-guard coverage • Same landscape format • Real-player bids are not capped by this bot rule

Items in this guide	Most common quality	Most common class	Bound and/or timed	Scope of the count
2,467	White / Normal (1,575)	Recipe (697)	1,134 — flagged	All positive caps from the checked lookup

Complete coverage: this edition includes all 2,467 positive vendor caps produced by the unmodified module’s direct database lookup—not just items with explicit prices. It contains the original 1,326 override-priced entries followed by 1,141 additional runtime-priced entries. No existing ID was removed. Those extra IDs did not need to be added to the config to receive this guard check.

What the guard does: for covered items, the buyer applies a limit based on what an NPC pays you (SellPrice), not the NPC’s retail charge. It limits the whole auction, not each stacked item. The ordinary buyer valuation must also permit the purchase. A high bot listing or addon suggestion is not proof the bot will pay that amount.

Worked examples — one item, successful sale, standard 5% cut

Item	Calculated valuation range / unit ¹	Maximum one-item buyout ²	Net at that buyout ³	NPC pays / unit
Knitted Sandals	4g 96s 92c – 7g 14s 32c	41c	39c	41c
Knitted Gloves	3g 27s 24c – 4g 70s 40c	27c	26c	27c
Rough Leather Boots	6g 30s 24c – 9g 5s 97c	52c	50c	52c
Cutlass	48g 96s 48c – 70g 38s 69c	4s 4c	3s 84c	4s 4c
Dirty Leather Bracers	72s 72c – 1g 4s 53c	6c	6c	6c
Thin Cloth Gloves	60s 60c – 87s 11c	5c	5c	5c

Knitted Sandals: the calculated unit valuation is 4g 96s 92c–7g 14s 32c, but the guard allows at most 41c for the entire auction. A successful one-item sale at 41c nets 39c after the standard cut; an NPC pays 41c immediately. The guard allows equality at 41c if the separate ordinary-budget check passes.

Money handling: a 52c sale nets 50c, not 49c, because the core truncates the fee. Tiny-price sales can tie vendoring when the cut rounds to zero. The deposit is returned on a successful sale; on ordinary unsold expiry the item returns but the deposit does not. Net figures exclude the returned deposit principal.

Do not confuse full guard coverage with auction availability

What you see	What it means	What it does not mean
2,467 guard records	Every positive cap from the checked direct npc_vendor lookup.	Not every NPC-sold item; trade goods and zero-SellPrice cases are outside this guard check.
1,333 U entries	No binding=1/4 or positive-duration block identified in these templates.	Not a guarantee of item availability, bot stock, player tradability or completed purchases.
1,134 B / T entries	Bound and/or timed templates; normally cannot be auctioned.	Not 1,134 extra items players can normally flip. Their caps are retained for complete inventory coverage.

When auctioning can still make sense — not an “always safe” list

Situation	What the guard means	What you should still check
A real player wants the item	The bot’s cap does not limit that player’s bid.	Auction eligibility, actual demand, price, fees and relisting risk.
The item is a trade good	Class 7 (Trade Goods) is excluded from this legacy vendor lookup.	Exclusion is not proof of profitability or buyer acceptance.
The item is green, blue or purple	Quality alone does not exempt an item from the cap.	214 green, 373 blue and 270 purple records in this guide, including normally blocked B/T entries.

¹ Calculated prices, not observed listings or guaranteed seller listings; ranges for bound/timed templates are hypothetical. ² Potential one-item buyout ceiling at the highest computed buyer value, subject to other checks; not a guaranteed purchase. ³ Excludes returned deposit principal; assumes a standard 5% cut and rate=1. NPC values assume an ordinary unbound, undamaged item. No optional 15-item guard extension is assumed.

How to Use the Complete Guard List

Current uploaded mod_ahbot.conf.txt • Saved unmodified module • Pinned AzerothCore baseline • No config or source changes applied

How the 2,467-item list was selected

The module directly joins item_template with npc_vendor, excludes class 7 (Trade Goods), and reads SellPrice. This guide contains every resulting item ID with SellPrice greater than zero. Item IDs missing from that lookup do not receive this positive cap; event-only stock is not added unless the item also appears in npc_vendor. A zero SellPrice bypasses this check. This is a database-snapshot inventory, not a live-server certification.

Group	Count	How its valuation is obtained
Explicit-price entries already in the guide	1,326	Stored config overrides, with the configured price variations.
Additional entries now included	1,141	Runtime fallback formula, with multipliers, clamping and applicable rerolls.
TOTAL positive-cap records	2,467	All share the same legacy whole-auction vendor-cap check.

Registry flags and blank payment figures

Flag	Count	Meaning
U	1,333	No static bound/timed block found. Equip-bound items become untradeable after binding; other checks still apply.
B	1,104	Template binding is bind-on-pickup or quest-bound, without positive duration. Normally not auctionable.
T	12	Positive duration, without a binding=1/4 flag. Normally not auctionable.
B+T	18	Both binding=1/4 and positive duration. Normally not auctionable.

Dashes: buyout/net columns are suppressed for B, T and B+T entries. For a U entry, a dash can instead mean that no positive one-item buyout fits the calculated budget. NPC/template cap values remain visible. A dash does not mean a zero vendor value. The CSV retains hypothetical arithmetic and explicitly marks normally blocked templates.

Stacks: 20 Lesser Healing Potions (858) vendor for 500c total, but the guard still permits only 25c for the entire auction. The ordinary budget scales with quantity; the guard cap does not. The higher normal valuation does not override this cap.

Bid versus buyout: a positive buyout must be strictly below the ordinary stack budget and at most the guard cap. An initial bid may equal the budget if it also passes the cap; existing bids have increment rules. Darkmoon Dog (19223) has no positive one-item buyout at its 0-1c unit valuation, but a 1c starting bid can pass on a 1c valuation. The CSV records both limits.

Seller blacklist is separate: 1,139 of the 2,467 IDs are explicitly seller-blacklisted. That does not remove them from the buyer guard lookup. Guard coverage does not promise auction eligibility, and this buyer rule does not prevent higher bids from real players.

Verification: the exact database query was reproduced; all 2,467 pricing cases and 69,052 extracted-source buyer boundary/stack cases passed. Every original 1,326 entry matched its prior numeric results. Price functions and seller/buyer rules were checked in saved source against the pinned baseline; not a complete server build or live-auction test.

Auction addon guide: pages 51-52. Why scan-based prices cannot reliably predict bot payments; worked examples, the rejected-buyout trap, and practical posting checks.

Why addon prices do not predict bot purchases

Auction addon guide • 1 of 2 • Current uploaded config and unchanged AH Bot Plus source

Auction addons are not inherently broken. A compatible addon can still scan the auction house, compare asking prices, help post auctions and track your own results. What a normal scan-based pricing recommendation cannot reliably tell you is the maximum this bot will pay, or whether and when it will buy. Posting through an addon does not bypass the server’s buyer rules.

An asking price is not a purchase commitment

What the addon may use	Why it can mislead when targeting this bot
Current listings, historical scans or an undercut percentage	These are offers to sell, not proof of completed sales. High bot listings can dominate a scan without showing any real-player demand at those prices.
The bot’s own seller listing	Seller valuation and final buyer acceptance are different steps. A seller price can be high while the separate buyer-side vendor guard rejects that same amount.
A market average or a price imported from another realm	The checked buyer calculates from this server’s stored item overrides or runtime formula. It does not read your addon’s saved prices, market average or undercut percentage as its budget.
A vendor-value tooltip or per-unit posting rule	A tooltip alone does not establish membership in this module’s database lookup. For covered items, the guard uses NPC SellPrice once for the whole auction, not NPC retail BuyPrice and not SellPrice times stack size.
An apparently profitable margin	A gross asking price is not net proceeds. The bot may reject it; auction cuts reduce successful receipts and ordinary unsold expiry loses the deposit. A low scan price is not proof of profit.

The server performs two separate price checks

Let W be the bot’s freshly calculated acceptable value per item, n the stack count, and S the positive whole-auction vendor cap for an ID in this guide. Your current acceptable-price multiplier is 1.0; vendor overpayment prevention is enabled.

Buyout: the whole-auction buyout must be positive, strictly less than $W \times n$, and at most S . A buyout equal to the ordinary budget fails that buyout test, even if it equals the cap. Passing both tests still requires selection and the other buyer checks.

Initial bid: with no existing bid, the starting bid may equal $W \times n$ and may equal S , but the bid branch must actually be reached. Your `AlwaysBidMaxCalculatedPrice = false` setting means an accepted initial bid uses the start price, not an automatic maximum-budget bid. Existing bids have their own minimum-increment and strict-budget test.

Why a scan cannot provide one fixed acceptance price: the buyer calls `CalculateItemValue` when evaluating a candidate. Override valuations use the configured -20% / $+15\%$ buyout variation, with integer handling; fallback valuations also depend on formula rules and applicable rerolls. A visible seller price is not a shared or locked future buyer roll. The PDF’s maximum buyout is a ceiling across the checked valuations, not a promise for every evaluation.

Addon pitfalls, examples and a better workflow

Auction addon guide • 2 of 2 • Same guard rules apply to manually posted and addon-posted auctions

1. Undercutting a high price can still be far above the cap

Knitted Sandals (792): this config gives a calculated unit valuation of 4g 96s 92c–7g 14s 32c, but the positive vendor cap is only 41c for the whole auction. An illustrative addon recommendation of 1g would pass the ordinary budget test here and still fail the vendor guard. At 41c, a successful one-item sale nets 39c under the assumed standard cut; vendoring pays 41c immediately. This example is arithmetic, not an observed addon quote or completed sale.

2. A cheap-per-item stack can still fail

20 Lesser Healing Potions (858): NPC SellPrice is 25c per potion, so vendoring the stack pays 500c (5s). The buyer’s vendor cap remains 25c for the entire auction. Even an addon posting rule of 2c per potion produces a 40c stack buyout and fails this cap. A successful 25c whole-stack sale nets only 24c at the assumed 5% cut. The ordinary budget scales with count; this guard does not.

3. A low starting bid does not rescue every rejected buyout

The code first chooses buyout or bid, then applies the vendor guard. If it chooses buyout because the price is below the ordinary budget, and the guard then rejects that buyout, it does not go back and try the starting bid during that evaluation. For example, Knitted Sandals at a 1g buyout and 41c start bid are skipped at this step: the selected 1g buyout exceeds the 41c cap. This is why a generic “high buyout, low bid” addon rule is not a reliable workaround.

4. Passing the price checks does not schedule a purchase

The checked config selects 1–3 candidate attempts per buyer invocation; the source chooses candidates randomly and updates on configured cycles. This is not a promise to inspect every listing each cycle or a fixed time-to-sale. Auction-house matching, valid item data and owner/bidder exclusions also apply. A seller blacklist does not itself remove an item from this buyer guard lookup. B/T entries in this guide are normally not auctionable, regardless of any addon price.

Use addons for convenience; use the server rules for limits

Practical check	How to use it
Identify the intended buyer	For real players, use market information cautiously: their bids are not constrained by this bot cap. For the bot, do not treat market value or the bot’s own asks as its buying budget.
Check the exact item and auction total	Find the item ID and eligibility flag in this guide. The max-buyout column is for ONE item; do not multiply the guard cap by stack size. A missing ID or class-7 exemption does not by itself mean safe or profitable.
Compare net receipts with vendoring	Allow for cut, deposits and acquisition costs. For an ordinary covered item with positive SellPrice, the capped gross payment cannot exceed that one-item NPC value; fees may make it worse. For stacks, compare against the full NPC stack payout.
If building a custom addon rule	Import the correct item-ID cap data and current pricing/config rules; distinguish buyout from bid and calculate whole-auction totals. This can prevent known-invalid prices, but cannot guarantee the next random valuation, selection, eligibility or purchase.

Limits and provenance: explanation checked against AuctionHouseBot.cpp (CalculateItemValue, AddNewAuctionBuyerBotBid, Update and PopulateVendorItemsPrices) and the uploaded mod_ahbot.conf.txt. It is not an addon-version compatibility test or a live-server sale guarantee. Fee examples assume 5% cut, rate=1, integer truncation and exclude returned deposit principal. No config/source changes or optional guard patch were applied.
